CAUSES OF CRIME

GOVERNMENT AGRESSION:

Governing people with aggression and fraud encourages them to practice aggression and fraud against each other.

The aggression of government mandated prohibition increases crime rates.

During alcohol prohibition America's murder rate rose nearly 70%, but returned to its previous levels after prohibition ended.

Since the War on Drugs began, America's murder rates have doubled.

Drug prohibition also inflates the cost of drugs, leading users to steal to support their high priced habits.

It is estimated that drug addicts commit 25% of all auto thefts, 40% of robberies and assaults, and 50% of burglaries and larcenies.

CRIMES WITHOUT VICTIMS:

A true crime always has a victim. When government defines undesirable actions, which have no victims, as crimes they are creating criminals by legislative acts.

REDUCING CRIME

Protect Victims' Rights:

Establish justice upon protecting the rights and interests of victims.

Victims should have a right to participate in prosecution of their case.

Criminals should fully compensate victims of crime for their loss.

End Prohibition:

Ending drug prohibition would double the resources available for crime prevention, and significantly reduce the number of violent criminals at work in your neighborhood.

Get Tough on Real Crime:

Focusing on real crime will reduce prison overcrowding, and allow for real consequence for real criminal actions

Promote Self-Defense:

Private ownership of firearms is a proven deterrent of crime. Self-defense with guns is the safest response to violent crime.
